COLLECTION

Kingsley

Two lights, so you never have to choose.

One Mirror. Two Lights. Many Moods.

- What is DuoLYT™?

Our dual-lighting system: a front light for task and a back light for atmosphere, in one mirror. Each is switched and controlled independently, so you can have one, the other, or both on at once.

Seamless frame. Dotless light.

A single-piece aluminium frame with no visible join. Buttons set flush in the glass — tap to wake, hold to dim, hold again to warm. Memory mode remembers your last settings, even when the wall switch is turned off. The LED edge runs as one unbroken line — no dots, no dark spots.

Debuted at KBB 2026 — one of the most talked-about launches of the show.

INTRODUCING

The Bathroom Mirror Expert Guide

A useful resource for you and your customers

Ever felt bombarded with questions – ‘why is this mirror so expensive?’, ‘I can get something similar for £150’, ‘what do kelvins mean, and what on earth is CRI?’

That’s exactly why we wrote a practical guide to help you answer these, and many others.

WHAT IT COVERS

- What makes a mirror suitable for bathroom use
- The essentials to look for
- Which features are worth having, and why
- What can go wrong
- What separates a mirror that performs well for years from one that disappoints early

It’s broken down section by section and written in plain English, with the terminology explained, so you can go straight to what you need.

Whether you’re fielding a question on the shop floor or specifying for a project, the answer is laid out clearly rather than something you have to dig for.

Note: the guide should be used alongside our product specifications. It explains the general principles, while the specification confirms the exact detail for the mirror in question.
